FOURTEENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME [A]

July 9th 2017 – Parish Mass Book Page 99

In this Gospel episode, Jesus praises the Father for revealing to the childlike the things that have been hidden from the wise and the learned. “Childlike” refers to the disciples, who were always listening to Jesus and taking his teachings to heart.

The disciples, we know, were not people who had a very good educational background. They came from humble origins, some were fishermen, carpenters, tax collectors etc.; the jobs of average people so to say, yet here we see how they patiently humbled themselves just to learn and understand what Jesus taught them day by day. That is why at times they failed to understand some of the teachings of their teacher.

Since they became close to Jesus, they followed him closely and from Jesus himself they came to know who the Father was. It is from this real experience as well that they came to know the heavenly things describe by the Son to them. As a matter of fact, Jesus did not keep any secrets; though they may not understand everything, he told them just the same.

The reason of Jesus was to actually bring us salvation. That even if he is gone already, this mission must go on. The apostles have been named to assist Jesus; so are we. By virtue of our baptism we are apostles also. We have the responsibility therefore to continue the mission of evangelization. Let us continue to bring Jesus to others without hesitation. Come let us follow him with courage and perseverance. Amen.
